Will technology venture put the south of The Netherlands on the map?

Verum nominee for Rising Star Award

Accountancy firm Deloitte has recently announced which technology companies the nominees are for the Rising Star Award 2008. The 10 nominated companies will - during the 'elevator pitch' on Thursday 25 September in Maarsse – 'battle' for the Rising Star Award. Verum, located in Waalre, is the only venture from the southern part of the Netherlands nominated for this award. The Rising Star jury will mainly assess the companies on turnover potential and will compare in this category those existing longer than one year, but shorter than five years. Robert C. Howe, CEO Verum: Verum created, with Analytical Software Design (ASD), a paradigm shift in software development and ensured the past 4 years a strong turnover increase - and we continue the growth trend! This year we have even grown from 9 to 25 employees and we aim at the end of this year to employ 35 people. We are thus very proud that Verum is nominated - and that even as the only company from Brabant!
